What is it like to attend this school?

Pupils are happy. They respond well to the clear boundaries and high expectations that staff have of their learning and their behaviour. Bullying is not an issue because pupils trust staff to help them resolve any issues at an early stage. Relationships between staff and pupils are respectful and positive. Pupils know that staff care for their well-being as well as their achievement. Pupils feel safe, supported and listened to.

Pupils benefit from a broad curriculum that equips them with the knowledge and understanding they need to achieve well. Pupils engage positively with their learning. They can see how their education is preparing them for future study. They take pride in their work and develop the determination to succeed. They grow in confidence and see themselves as successful learners.

Pupils are confident to share their views in a mature way and talk about what interests them. They respect others' opinions. They enjoy exploring ideas and issues through discussions and debates. They contribute to the planning of trips and events for the benefit of the school community.

Parents and carers are very positive about the work of the school. They appreciate the way staff work with pupils to provide a positive experience of education and develop their aspirations for the future.

What does the school do well and what does it need to do better?

Since the previous inspection, leaders and the proprietor have improved the quality of education. Leaders have put in place a well-planned curriculum across a broad range of subjects. They have carefully considered the knowledge pupils should learn so that pupils can be confident and achieve well in the subjects that they study.

Staff receive the training and guidance that they need to teach the curriculum well. They plan lessons that build on what pupils have learned before and to catch up with learning that pupils may have missed. Assessment is used well to check what pupils know and can remember. Staff make sure that pupils have regular opportunities to revisit their learning. This helps pupils secure important knowledge. Staff adapt the curriculum well to meet pupils' academic, social and emotional needs.

Leaders promote reading. Pupils who are less confident readers are given additional support to help them become more fluent readers. Well-chosen texts extend pupils' reading experience and knowledge of literature, including poetry. Pupils learn to analyse texts. They apply this knowledge in other subjects, for example when they are evaluating sources in history.

Leaders have widened the qualifications and accreditation on offer to pupils, especially in English, mathematics, biology and history. Some pupils also access courses in music, animal care and construction through off-site specialist provision. Pupils are equipped with the core skills and qualifications to prepare them for training and employment. Pupils gain employability skills through an accredited programme. Independent careers advice helps pupils identify training pathways and next steps. However, the range of qualifications and the work experience on offer are not yet fully developed. On occasion, pupils' opportunities are not as closely aligned with their abilities, interests and aspirations as they could be. The curriculum and positive school culture promote pupils' personal development well. Pupils learn tolerance and respect for different cultures and beliefs. They are well informed about current affairs and the democratic process. Pupils learn to balance different opinions, listen to others and use evidence and examples to justify their own views.

Staff are consistent in managing pupils' behaviour. Pupils consider the rules to be fair and are there for everyone's benefit. Staff work with pupils to help them to develop positive attitudes. This includes developing pupils' resilience and persistence in learning, as well as strategies to manage their emotions. This is helping pupils to build the habit of regular attendance. Pupils commit to their learning because they are equipped with the behaviours and attitudes that contribute positively to their achievement.

The proprietor has established clear systems of governance and oversight of leaders' work. Staff feel valued. They are positive about the support they receive to develop their practice and professional expertise.

Safeguarding

The arrangements for safeguarding are effective.

The proprietor has put in place effective systems for reporting and recording safeguarding concerns. Staff are well trained. They know how to recognise the signs of potential abuse and what they need to do if they have a concern. They are knowledgeable about local safeguarding risks.

Daily staff briefings ensure that safeguarding remains at the forefront of staff's minds. When there are concerns, leaders and the proprietor act promptly. They are responsive and work well with other agencies to ensure that pupils and families can access the help and support they need.

The processes for recruiting new staff are rigorous.

What does the school need to do to improve?

(Information for the school and proprietor)

- The range of qualifications that pupils can obtain and the work experience opportunities that pupils can access are still in development. Pupils do not have access to some qualifications and work experience in line with their abilities, interests and aspirations. Leaders should develop the qualification and work experience offer to enable pupils to be very well prepared for their chosen next steps in education, training and employment.
